The logo has colour, mono and white versions for various usages. This should encompass all uses of the logo.

PNG - use on most digital applications. It is resolution dependant with a max size of 220mm (which should be way above most digital use).

EPS - this is a vector graphic and can be scaled to any size without distortion. Mainly used in print applications.

SVG - a scalable digital file, they can be scaled to any size without losing quality. This makes SVGs ideal for web design, as they provide crisp and responsive images across various screen sizes, and can also support animation for dynamic content.

This version is inside a "Speech Bubble" to give it a little animation.
We can use this on the cover page with the text/graphic version for main use?
